Winsbere House Dulverton Scoops Certificate of Recognition

Situated on the edge of the small 'southern gateway to Exmoor' town of Dulverton is Winsbere House. Built in 1931, Winsbere House is set in pretty gardens, with a large woodland garden at the rear, just a 10-minute stroll from the bustling town of Dulverton, and Exmoor National Park.

Winsbere House boasts three bedrooms, all of which have breathtaking views over the garden and the surrounding countryside, with woodland and fields, beyond. Bedroom One, the large double en-suite, has double aspect windows with uninterrupted views of Pixton Park. Bedroom Two, a smaller double room, has access to a luxury private bathroom with bath/shower just across the landing, which also has views of the garden and surrounding Exmoor countryside. Bedroom Three is a twin en-suite room that also overlooks the garden. All the rooms are tastefully decorated, have Free Sat TVs, and tea/coffee making facilities.

With such a wonderful location, and offering great facilities, Aspire have selected Winsbere House for a Certificate of Recognition for Traditional British Breaks. Owner, Margaret Rawle, said: "I'm thrilled to receive this official recognition – it's great. My husband Richard and I were born and bred in the area and our families still farm on Exmoor. We have a good knowledge of the local area and Exmoor in general and encourage guests to visit the secret places that aren't always on the map! We get lots of repeat business, which speaks for itself, but hope this Certificate of Recognition brings more people from the Aspire region to our area."

There's plenty to keep the entire family entertained, right from the doorstep of Winsbere House: the National Cycle Route 3 passes the front gate, there's easy access for touring Exmoor, West Somerset and the North Devon Coast, and three National Trust properties are within 40 minutes.
